Article was actually very fair only because of direct proactive SecVA personal response. Missal response not helpful and dismissive of main fix and outcome. Overall shows new direction, leadership and is now test for senior leaders to step up and continually be nimble and decisive.

Veterans Affairs Media Summary and News Clips

1. Top Stories

1.1 - The Washington Post (PowerPost): Hospital or roach motel? VA chief says agency aggressively responds to problems (30 May, Joe Davidson, 43.9M online visitors/mo; Washington, DC)

A new report makes the Department of Veterans Affairs hospital in Hines, Ill., sound like it was a place where the bugs were well fed, much to the disgust of patients who didn't want to eat after creepy critters. The VA Office of Inspector General report issued last week is one of several in recent weeks that demonstrate problems related to veterans' health services, even as the care they receive generally is good.

1.2 - FOX News (Video): Secretary Shulkin on the future of the Veterans Affairs (30 May, 32.5M online visitors/mo; New York, NY)

This seven-minute video included an interview with Secretary Shulkin where he discusses how the Department is working to improve services for Veterans, the proposed budget, and his response to criticism of that budget request. Video description: VA secretary speaks out on 'Special Report.'

1.3 - The Washington Times (AP): Veterans Affairs to open outpatient clinic in Joplin (30 May, 10.8M online visitors/mo; Washington, DC)

The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs says it plans to open an outpatient clinic in Joplin. The agency announced Tuesday that the clinic will operate in conjunction with a clinic in Springfield that is currently under construction to serve veterans in southwest Missouri. The Joplin Globe reports the Gene Taylor Outpatient Clinic in Mount Vernon will close once the Springfield and Joplin clinics open.

Hyperlink to Above

1.4 - KUSA (NBC-9, Video): 73 years after he was wounded in WWII, Colorado man receives Purple Heart (30 May, Sarah Anderson, 3.2M online visitors/mo; Denver, CO)

He told the staff at the Denver VA Medical Center that he had never been received the medal while he was recently undergoing cancer treatment, and one of the social workers reached out to get him the medal. It was given to him engraved with his name, branch and dates of service. "She went through a lot of red tape and so forth," he noted.

1.5 - Omaha World-Herald: Hundreds turn out for Omaha National Cemetery's first Memorial Day service (30 May, Erin Duffy, 2.1M online visitors/mo; Omaha, NE)

"It is a day of remembrance, a day of giving back, and a day to reflect," said Chief Master Sgt. Patrick F. McMahon, a senior enlisted leader at U.S. Strategic Command. McMahon was one of several speakers at the first-ever Memorial Day service at the new Omaha National Cemetery in Sarpy County. Hundreds turned out for the ceremony.

1.6 - The Gazette (Video): Death of Colorado Springs Marine prompts congressman's call for probe (30 May, Tom Roeder, 873k online visitors/mo; Colorado Springs, CO)

The death of a Colorado Springs Marine profiled in Sunday's Gazette has prompted a measure before Congress that mandates an outside investigation into the Department of Veterans Affairs handling of suicidal patients. Aurora Republican U.S. Rep. Mike Coffman said his measure would require the National Academies of Science, Engineering, and Medicine review veterans' deaths within the last five years related to drug overdoses or suicide.

2. Veteran and Employee Experience

2.1 - Breitbart: Mike Pence Sends Project Hero Riders Off on 10th Memorial Day Ride for Veterans (29 May, Michelle Moons, 19.1M online visitors/mo; Los Angeles, CA)

Vice President and Mrs. Pence as well as Shulkin were presented with blue Project Hero biking jerseys to commemorate the ride. "That'll give me a year to fit into it," joked Pence. Project Hero is a national nonprofit which describes itself as an "organization dedicated to helping Veterans and First Responders affected by PTSD, TBI and injury achieve rehabilitation..."

2.2 - Daily Caller: Trump Fired A Corrupt VA Official. Then The VA Stepped In And Said Not So Fast (29 May, Luke Rosiak, 11.8M online visitors/mo; Washington, DC)

A notoriously corrupt Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) manager fired in the first day of President Donald Trump's presidency — to rousing acclaim from veterans who heralded it as a sign of lasting reform — has been returned to work by VA officials after he filed a civil-service protections appeal. The return of the Puerto Rico hospital director is the latest example of Trump's reform efforts encountering the entrenchment of what he has called Washington's swamp...

Hyperlink to Above

2.3 - The Denver Post: Veterans Affairs must solve its growing drug-theft problem (30 May, Editorial Board, 4.8M online visitors/mo; Denver, CO)

Coloradans well know that such thefts, also called drug diversions, can lead to frightening situations in which patients face infections from those stealing the drugs. Drug diversions have troubled Colorado private hospitals in recent years. In addition to infection risks, patients recovering from surgery and otherwise dealing with extreme pain are left to suffer as a result of a thief's search for a fix.

2.4 - The Fiscal Times: How Bad Is Drug Theft at VA Hospitals? Feds Pursue Dozens of New Cases (30 May, Eric Pianin, 1.5M online visitors/mo; New York, NY)

The Trump administration has vowed to step up efforts to address a nationwide opioid and heroin addiction epidemic – one that claims the lives of more than 33,000 people annually -- by appointing a new commission headed by New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie and distributing grants authorized during the Obama administration.

Hyperlink to Above

2.5 - Arkansas Democrat-Gazette: Service urged at Fayetteville ceremony, Governor, others honor fallen soldiers on Memorial Day at national cemetery (30 May, Dave Perozek, 871k online visitors/mo; Little Rock, AR)

Gov. Asa Hutchinson asked those attending a Memorial Day observance at the Fayetteville National Cemetery to do what they can to keep their country strong. Hutchinson, the guest speaker at Monday's event, alluded to the idea of a soldier in battle picking up a fallen flag, an action symbolic of what America needs from its citizens, he said.

2.6 - Tucson News Now: Veterans still experiencing issues with transportation to VA appointments (30 May, 601k online visitors/mo; Tucson, AZ)

The Southern Arizona VA Health Care Services (SAVAHCS) is working to provide transportation to eligible veterans, after a contract dispute that is happening between the Department of Labor and LMC. SAVAHCS is providing transportation to veterans by deploying their own drivers, approving overtime pay, and reassigning staff to drive those same veterans to their appointments, until a new contract is in place.

2.7 - El Paso Times (Video): Commemorating true meaning of Memorial Day (29 May, David Burge, 538k online visitors/mo; El Paso, TX)

Memorial Day is much more than just a day off from work. That was the message that came through loud and clear at the annual Memorial Day ceremony Monday at the Fort Bliss National Cemetery. "People forget that it is a day to honor the veterans who have been killed in wars," said El Pasoan and former Army Sgt. James Barnes, who served from 1966-70.

2.8 - El Paso Times (Video): Boy and Girl Scouts decorate veterans graves with flags (27 May, Maria Cortes, 538k online visitors/mo; El Paso, TX)

Thirteen-year-old Itzel Garcia, a Girl Scout, took her time placing small American flags in front of graves Saturday at Fort Bliss National Cemetery. After each placement, she calmly stepped back and saluted. The flags fluttered in the gentle breeze. "Both my daughter and son are scouts. They wanted to be here because they feel honored to do this," said Jose Garcia, who helped to distribute flags to the scouts.

2.9 - KOLO (CBS-2, Video): Security at Reno Veterans Hospital (30 May, Terri Russell, 274k online visitors/mo; Reno, NV)

Back in December of 2013, our local veterans' hospital took a threat by a disgruntled patient very seriously. The patient called the U.S. Attorney's Office and made comments that were perceived as a potential risk to patients and staff. "What we've noticed though is this is an individual we've actually had history with in the past," said Darin Farr, with VA Public Affairs at the time.

2.10 - KNWA (NBC-51, Video): Memorial Day Celebration at Fayetteville National Cemetery, Ceremony at Fayetteville National Cemetery for Memorial Day (29 May, Dana Winter, 189k online visitors/mo; Fayetteville, AR)

A ceremony at Fayetteville National Cemetery in honor of Memorial Day remembered our nation's past while looking toward its future. Governor Asa Hutchinson says, "Even if you're relaxing as most people do today, just a time of silence and reflection upon those who have given their life for our freedom is important."

Hyperlink to Above

2.11 - The Herald-Mail: VA employee recounts son's combat death during ceremony (30 May, Richard Belisle, 158k online visitors/mo; Hagerstown, MD)

His son was with the 1st Battalion 503rd Infantry Regiment, 173rd Airborne Brigade Combat Team in Afghanistan. "They were in a firefight," said Terry Stotler, director of volunteer services at the Martinsburg Veterans Affairs Medical Center, which hosted its annual Memorial Day service Tuesday morning. Wilson was firing a .50-caliber machine gun, shooting and killing enemy soldiers, when the vehicle in which he was riding was ambushed by a rocket-propelled grenade, Stotler said.

Hyperlink to Above

2.12 - WROC (CBS-8, Video): VA to establish veterans cemetery in Pembroke, Construction will begin this summer (29 May, Abbey Noble, 150k online visitors/mo; Rochester, NY)

The Department of Veterans affairs is set to establish a national cemetery in the town of Pembroke. The cemetery will be for all veterans in the Western New York area, which includes Rochester and part of the Finger Lakes. The VA purchased the 132 acre location two years ago.

1.2 - The Washington Post (PowerPost): Hospital or roach motel? VA chief says agency aggressively responds to problems (30 May, Joe Davidson, 43.9M online visitors/mo; Washington, DC)

Was it a hospital or a roach motel?

A new report makes the Department of Veterans Affairs hospital in Hines, Ill., sound like it was a place where the bugs were well fed, much to the disgust of patients who didn't want to eat after creepy critters.

The VA Office of Inspector General report issued last week is one of several in recent weeks that demonstrate problems related to veterans' health services, even as the care they receive generally is good.

But wait. VA Secretary David Shulkin says the reports, including one about the suicide crisis line and another about unsanitary conditions at the District's VA hospital, ultimately represent good news about how the department responds to problems.

He readily admitted, during a telephone interview, VA has its troubles. He vigorously insisted, however, that the department is moving aggressively to correct what is wrong, despite a "constant drumbeat of negativity."

"I want people to understand," Shulkin said, adamantly, "that this is a VA that is willing to acknowledge it has problems and to make decisions quickly and is getting the results."

That was the case, Shulkin added, following an OIG report last month about dirty "sterile" storage areas and supply problems at VA Medical Center in the District. He replaced the director within hours of the report's release and visited the hospital the next day.

Shulkin pointed out that the Hines report, although issued last week, is based on a site visit last year. Since then, an outside report by a pest-control company gave the facility high grades.

The title of the inspector general's report is government bland – "Nutrition and Food Service Environment of Care Concerns: Edward Hines, Jr. VA Hospital Hines, Illinois." But the findings are shocking:

- "Several patients received food trays with cockroaches on them

- “Nursing staff and several patients witnessed cockroaches on transportation carts
- Inspectors “observed conditions favorable to pest infestation.”

“In the main kitchen,” the report said, “we found open cardboard boxes with dry food products exposed, food items in open cardboard boxes that were stored less than 6 inches from the floor, several cracks in the flooring, water infiltration around the floor drains, and trash receptacles without lids.”

To make matters worse, the hospital’s leadership did not move aggressively to correct the problem.

Reports of cockroaches on patient food trays were submitted to the hospital leaders six times between March 2011 and December 2015, but they “had not successfully resolved the problem,” the inspectors found. “Facility leadership relied on its pest control program and did not take additional action to control the problem.”

Patients took action and in at least one instance would not accept hospital meals. Pizza was ordered, the report said, “because patients were upset and refused to eat the food delivered via transportation carts.”

In response, VA spokesman James Hutton said there have been “outside re-inspections of the kitchen since the OIG report and none of them have shown findings of roaches.

“In fact, a board-certified entomologist from Orkin inspected the main kitchen at Hines less than three weeks ago on May 11 and reported, ‘your kitchen is very clean, nearly perfectly repaired, and your staff are pursuing recommendations aggressively.’ The Orkin inspector noted ‘You are now outperforming the wide majority of commercial kitchens out there in regards to pest proofing and management.’ ”

That’s good news, but sometimes news from VA is not as good as it seems.

A March 21 VA news release headline said “VA fixes Veterans Crisis Line.” That followed an inspector general’s report about “significant obstacles providing suicide prevention and crisis intervention services to veterans, service members, and their families.”

Fixed? That was a surprise to Inspector General Michael J. Missal, because so many items weren’t.

“I didn’t understand how it could be seen as fixed when we had 23 open recommendations,” Missal said by telephone.

Shulkin said the one issue that matters is getting calls to the crisis line answered quickly.

Now, 95 percent of calls are answered within 20 seconds and just 1 percent are rolled over to another suicide-prevention service, Shulkin said. He has hired new crisis line leadership and 200 new crisis line staff members to answer calls.

Note: My test call to the line was promptly answered Tuesday afternoon. After a few words, I hung up, not wanting to get in the way of someone who actually needed help. Then, someone called back just to make sure I was not in distress. That’s good service.

"It is working. It has improved, but it is not perfect," said Jim Tuorila, a psychologist and surgeon general of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Some callers, he added, remain "on hold for longer periods of time than they should be."

Considering the continuous, and often justified, beating VA has taken since the scandal over the coverup of long wait times erupted in 2014, it's worth noting that veterans generally praise the department's health care, once it's delivered. In July, a Journal of General Internal Medicine literature review found "VA often (but not always) performs better than or similarly to other systems of care with regard to the safety and effectiveness of care."

That's very good. But it only takes one roach to ruin a reputation.

1.4 - KUSA (NBC-9, Video): 73 years after he was wounded in WWII, Colorado man receives Purple Heart (30 May, Sarah Anderson, 3.2M online visitors/mo; Denver, CO)

A Colorado man may be the last to ever receive a Purple Heart for his part in World War II.

Daniel Sayad served for two-and-a-half years. He hit the beaches of Normandy three weeks after D-Day, and made his through France to northern Germany as part of the 29th Infantry.

He was injured in a mortar field in November 1944, while taking point on a mission, and took a bunch of shrapnel. The mortar field also killed a friend of his.

Then it got worse. Although medics found him and carried him back for treatment, a German sniper shot him in his leg on the journey back. He was flown to England for further surgery and later rejoined his outfit. He was discharged after the war ended in 1946 and returned to Chicago, later moving to Colorado.

And while he received a Combat Infantryman badge for his part in three major campaigns with the 29th, he was never officially awarded a Purple Heart, the Denver VA Facebook noted. Sayad said he only ever received the paperwork for a Purple Heart, which he at some point lost, and then forgot about.

He told the staff at the Denver VA Medical Center that he had never been received the medal while he was recently undergoing cancer treatment, and one of the social workers reached out to get him the medal. It was given to him engraved with his name, branch and dates of service.

"She went through a lot of red tape and so forth," he noted.

He was called down to the VA last week and taken to a large room crowded with various local and national department heads, where was presented with the medal. He was "kind of in shock" and couldn't hold back tears as he finally received the medal that had taken more than 70 years to be awarded to him.

"I was really kind of nervous," he said. "I kind of cracked up because it was such a surprise and I was so proud to finally get it."

Sayad was told that it's quite likely he'll be the last person to receive a Purple Heart for his part in World War II.

He's thankful to the VA for all they've done for him, which includes more than just the Purple Heart.

"I've had a lot of things, good things, come and happen to me from the VA," he said. "They have treated me just wonderfully."

He's also thankful for his 93 years of life and where he is right now. His cancer is stabilized, he has two children and numerous grandchildren. And now a Purple Heart medal.

While he's moving back to Chicago to spend his remaining years with family, Sayad said he hates leaving Colorado, where he's lived for the past 36 years.

For many, Memorial Day is marked by barbecues, block parties and other celebrations meant to usher in the start of summer.

But at events across the region, members of the military who perished at home and abroad were honored by speakers who urged that people pay tribute to the sacrifices of those who have served — and their families left behind.

"It is a day of remembrance, a day of giving back, and a day to reflect," said Chief Master Sgt. Patrick F. McMahon, a senior enlisted leader at U.S. Strategic Command.
